TWENTY-FIFTH REPORT ON THE DISTRICT, CRIMINAL, AND PRIVATE LUNATIC ASYLUMS IN IRELAND.

TO HIS GRACE JAMES, DUKE OF ABERCORN, K.G.,
LORD LIEUTENANT-GENERAL AND GENERAL GOVERNOR OF IRELAND.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR GRACE,

We have the honour to submit to your Grace our Twenty-fifth Parliamentary Report on the extent of lunacy, and the state of institutions for the reception and maintenance of the insane of all classes in Ireland in the past year, during which the department of the public service over which we have been placed has hitherto occupied our unceasing attention, and we venture to believe with beneficial results. In the brief period of a twelve-month no very marked changes can be fairly expected or observable in the general character of public establishments already in an advanced condition as regards interior organisation and domestic arrangements, the growth of time and of the constant care bestowed on their development. Hence, and as in the manifold reports anterior to the present, we furnished not only minute details bearing on the history and progress of asylums in this country, but coupled with them our observations, and the deductions from a long experience in the treatment of insanity, and the best mode of meeting its requirements, in a public or social point of view, we shall at once proceed to deal with statistical information having special reference to the year under consideration.

INTRODUCTORY.

On the 31st December, 1873, the number of patients mentally affected, and within our immediate supervision, amounted to 11,777, or 194 more than at a like date in the preceding year, while those at large, comprising not alone lunatics in the recognised acceptance of the term, but idiots, epileptics, and imbeciles were estimated at 6,848. The total insane accommodated at the end of last year, irrespective of the type of their maladies, were thus distributed:—

Immense-TOOK,
large.

If to the above be added the unregistered, or those returned to us from the various police-districts of Ireland as living with their friends or not having any fixed habitation, and as regards the great majority under the denomination of idiotic, weak-minded, and epileptic, the general aggregate would embrace 18,625 individuals as labouring in this country under some diseased manifestation of mind—being in the proportion of 3.20 per thousand to the whole population.

On comparing the statistical returns for 1874 and 1875, we find that in the insane at large there is an excess of 44, chiefly among the idiotic and imbecile, but a diminution in the lunatic element properly so called, or in the immediate class for which asylums are essentially intended, by 280 persons; this latter result is satisfactory, as indicating that cases likely to benefit by scientific treatment, are being drafted to suitable receptacles.

Summary of District
Asylums.

We will now afford your Grace a brief, but, for practical purposes, we trust, a sufficiently comprehensive summary of the working of district asylums in the twelvemonth just expired. On the 1st January, 1875, there were located in them 7,585 patients—4,072 males, 3,513 females; during the year 2,132 were admitted, namely, 1,095 males and 1,037 females, of whom 1,777 were new cases—906 males, 871 females—and 355 cases previously under treatment, 189 being men, and 166 women. During the same period 939 were discharged—cured—470 males, and 469 females; and as improved, 236—119 and 117 respectively, of either sex. Fifty-six were brought home—41 males and 15 females—not recovered, but tranquil and amenable; while 3 males effected permanent escapes. Seven hundred and forty-two patients died—391 males and 351 females, all from natural causes, save six—2 from accidents, and 4 from suicide; on these exceptional deaths coroners' inquests were duly held, and though with fully exonerating verdicts, the occurrences are to be regretted. There appears from the preceding general data that there was a total of 9,717 lunatics under treatment in the course of the year, and at its close 7,741, or 156 more than on the 31st December, 1874, in Irish district asylums; of which total 4,142 were males and 3,599 females.

As regards curability and mortality, while the death rate from the above statistics seems nearly proportionate between the sexes, recoveries have been greater among females, with whom mental derangement from moral causes is more prevalent than with men.

Management.

With reference to the professional, domestic, and fiscal management of these institutions, from our frequent inspections and attendance at board meetings, we are in a position to report in favourable terms on the system of treatment adopted and carried out in them, the economy of their current maintenance, and the interest taken in their welfare by the governing bodies.

Recoveries and deaths.

Contrasting the recoveries and deaths during each of the two preceding years, the cures, calculated in the ordinary mode, afford a per-centage almost identical with that given in our last report, being 43.70 on admissions, and 11.70 on the average resident; while cures and improved discharges (246) combined are equal to 53.30 per cent. on admissions, and to 12.18 on the total resident. There exists, however, a balance in favour of 1874 on the score of a smaller mortality, the death rate in 1873 being about 1 per cent. greater; in other words, 7.60 as against 6.80 in the latter year—a mortality, however, not so large as the general average, Irish asylums being hitherto so far particularly fortunate.

DEATHS

On examining into the probable cause of the increased mortality above adverted to, we attribute it in part to the number of hopeless, indeed it might be added moribund cases transmitted under magisterial warrants to asylums as being dangerous and violent. So far as our experience goes, an injudicious exercise of power in committing lunatics has perceptibly increased, notwithstanding the issue of official circulars directing the attention of justices of the peace to the specific and intelligible clauses of the statute. Last session, in order to obviate this objectionable practice, an Act was passed, by which two governors of any district asylum, in accordance with certain engagements on the part of the friends or relatives of an insane patient, could authorize an immediate admission into the district asylum where the party resided. Though this law has nominally been in operation for over nine months, little or no advantage has been taken of it.

Notwithstanding the increased mortality from the causes already given, the sanitary condition of district asylums during the twelvemonth we are dealing with has been satisfactory. They were unvisited by any epidemic or contagious disease, save at Castlebar, where a low type of fever, affecting five attendants and over twenty patients, was rife for a few months. Every precaution was taken against its spread, the sick being completely isolated all through from the other inmates. It would not, however, be a fair criterion to calculate the per-centage of deaths in hospitals for the insane on the basis of those which occur in the community at large, or indeed in other institutions. Taking the general annual averages in these countries, they may be set down as 24 in every 1,000, from infancy to old age, in all grades and classes. That they should considerably more than double that proportion among the insane, admits of easy explanation, bearing in view that lunacy in itself is so largely associated with animal or physical debility, and is more a disease of advanced and emaciated life—hence the double reaction of mind and body on each other, and with consequent multiplied results of a fatal character.

Sanitary condition.

In our official capacity, while anxious to render public institutions for the insane beneficial to society in every reasonable manner, we should regret if an uncalled for expenditure of money, whether levied through local rates or granted by the Executive, were to be entailed, without some commensurate utility. For the one lunatic received into an English asylum, on the ground alone of being dangerous, by direct magisterial warrant, and not in the ordinary and recognised mode of application, we apprehend, relatively speaking, that at least ten are so transferred to our district institutions, in which when once located, be they from the first quiet, naturally inoffensive imbeciles, or helpless from age and infirmity, they remain as a rule for life. To obviate the inconveniences likely to accrue thereon, a clause of the Act just named empowers the removal of a certain class of inmates from public asylums to poorhouses, on an understanding being arrived at between the Local Government Board, the Inspectors, and Union guardians; but as yet, we may say, no practical arrangements have been effected. Local guardians, as a rule, are too desirous to get rid of the insane of all classes to accept with favour the proposition of receiving new cases, cognizant at the same time that the Government rate in aid would diminish taxation £10 4s. per annum in favour of each district asylum resident.

IMPROVE-

Overcrowding
by chronic cases.

It cannot then be a matter of surprise, from the irregular and constant influx of chronic cases of insanity, and also of imbeciles and epileptics, to asylums, together with the difficulty of procuring their removal (when no person is held responsible to do so from the mode of committal), that these institutions get crowded with hopeless inmates, to the exclusion, unhappily, and not unfrequently, of regular applicants in the early or acute stages of mental disease, as evidenced by the fact that of the 7,741 inmates on the 31st of December last, the incurables numbered 5,243. It has been correctly remarked by a Scotch Physician, Dr. Clouston, that the amount of admissions in any one year afford a much better test of asylum requirements and utility than the whole number chargeable, so that while every facility should be given to increase the former, patients should be discharged as speedily as possible, to prevent the accumulation of chronic cases. But though opposed to a misappropriation or an injudicious use of asylums, in the special erection of which large monetary outlays have been primarily incurred, with a current expenditure for their support much beyond that of others maintained for the poor out of public rates, we are not the less sensible to the care necessary, as we have stated on a former occasion, to ensure the relief and comfort of a class that of itself has a paramount claim on the community at large.

Transference of Inmates.

To unite the double object of economy, and the well-being of that section of the insane who can derive no substantial benefit from a detention in ordinary district asylums, is a question of progressive importance. To a certain, but limited extent, for their actual capabilities are restricted, workhouses under the authority and with the sanction of the Local Government Board, have been rendered more fitting receptacles for the demented—tranquil and infirm, as well as epileptics; still there are drawbacks in them, essentially so, as regards want of space for exercise, day-room accommodation, and suitable sleeping provision for the parties themselves, and those in charge of them. These deficiencies do not fail to escape our observation, and while under existing circumstances they cannot be fully met, we bear a willing testimony to the considerate attention paid, on our recommendation, to the requirements of the insane inmates of poor-houses, in regard to dietary, raiment generally, and cleanliness, on our various visits of inspection.

During the past year the attendance of Governors has been full and regular, in most asylums at monthly and in some few of larger size at bimonthly meetings, when fiscal and other matters pertaining to the general management are duly considered. The proceedings at each meeting are transmitted for our information, and we consequently are kept informed of all requisite details connected with the administration of these institutions. Although measures of practical utility are promptly carried out by most Boards to a very considerable extent, the rate in aid so far from inducing all to be more liberal in their views and policy would in some instances seem to exercise a contrary influence, as evinced by the disposition displayed occasionally to reduce current expenditure so as to bring the cost of the maintenance of the insane in asylums to a nearer level with that of the support of the paupers in union workhouses. This does not appear to us, however, to be an object altogether in accordance with the intention of Government when granting a liberal subsidy.

Attendance of Governors.

Nevertheless one year with another improvements have been carried out in the interior economy of public asylums, all tending to the well-being of the insane, and to which the attention of the local authorities had been specially directed from time to time by us personally, or in our minutes of inspection. The most obvious requirements and deficiencies which we would now venture to notice are, a better supply of furniture, more facilities for amusement, and a simple homely form of ornamentation, which, indicative in itself of domestic comfort, would obviate the depressing influence arising from the monotonous appearance of day-rooms with bare whitewashed walls, and of blank cheerless corridors.

Convinced as we are that the employment of the insane on the land attached to asylums is at once the healthiest and most remunerative occupation for the patients, and that best suited to their previous habits of life, the enlargement of the area available for farm operations has ever been regarded by us as an object, when practicable, of the greatest importance, and we are happy to be able to report that useful out-door employment is now generally provided on a large scale in the various institutions under our supervision.

Employment.

The system of school education, originated in one of the hospitals for the insane of this country, makes favourable progress. This education combined with religious instruction and observances now generally recognised in public asylums, cannot but prove with judicious control beneficial; although it may not exercise a directly curative agency it must at least prevent many of the insane from constantly brooding over the delusions with which they are afflicted, and relieve what otherwise would be the almost unbroken monotony of a listless existence.

Education.

In some of the larger asylums the Resident Medical Superintendents have formed musical bands, whose performances are on the whole very creditable, notwithstanding the changes which constantly occur in their composition by reason of the not

Amusements

Improvement.—Amusement. unfrequent resignation of attendants and the discharge of recovered lunatics who had acted as musicians. The formation and maintenance of bands of this description should, in our opinion, be more liberally encouraged, as we know of no greater or more certain boon to the insane than that afforded by the frequent opportunity of listening to or taking part in music, and of no recreation better qualified to produce order and tranquillity.

But, perhaps, no more gratifying indication can be afforded of a progressive and more humanising treatment of the insane, than can be derived from the fact, that the inmates of our Public Asylums, instead of being restricted as lately within the immediate grounds, however spacious, that are attached to these institutions, now not unfrequently visit places of amusement, or make excursions into the open country in parties, under the care of watchful attendants.

Protection against fire. For the double purpose of preventing the extension of accidental fires, should any unfortunately occur, and of guaranteeing asylums against pecuniary losses, the advisability of securing an efficient protection by night watches, and a certain supply of water, and at the same time of increasing the amount of insurances has been brought by us under the notice of various Boards, and our suggestions adopted.

Commissioners of Central and Inspectors. With reference to expenditure, a very important subject of consideration in all branches of the public service, that incurred by the establishment and subsequent current maintenance of public asylums is comprised within two heads; the first connected with their erection, furnishing, and the purchase of sites, for which with the Chairman and one of the Commissioners of Public Works we act as a joint board, all property appertaining to these institutions being vested in us by Act of Parliament; the second is connected with the annual cost of maintenance. The latter comes more immediately within our province in the present Parliamentary report, as Inspectors having the supervision of all matters bearing on their fiscal management as well as on their sanitary and general condition.

The current monetary account of the twenty-two asylums now in operation, involved during the year 1873 a sum of £223,881 18s 4d.

Expenditure. On the 1st January there was to the credit of the different local Boards £19,857 12s. 2d.; while the total receipts up to the 31st December amounted to £204,024 6s. 2d., thus derived:—from the Paymaster-General £140,468 17s. 1d.; from the Treasury rate in aid, £56,948; for private patients, £2,735 13s. 1d.; from farm and garden produce sold, £2,948 3s. 9d.; and from miscellaneous sources, £923 12s. 3d.

Analysis of. On the other hand the various charges and items of outlay actually disbursed, as given fully in the appendices, and subject to audit examination in minutest detail, extended to £190,174 17s. 9d. There consequently remained an available balance in hand or in hand of £33,717 0s. 7d. The above total outlay, if subdivided on the daily average of patients during the twelve months would represent the cost of each at £24 1s. 3d., or £1 0s. 10d. less than in the preceding year. And here it may not be inopportune to observe that the tabular returns of expenditure afforded in our reports under its manifold headings, represent in full, establishments charges, and all others without reservation, save those on the construction of new buildings, the extension and enlargement of old ones, or the taking of additional land, which, through Government loans, are otherwise provided for.

In 1875 the support of public asylums throughout the three kingdoms was supplemented by a like rate in aid for a period of nine months, whereby this country benefited to the amount of £56,948. Had it extended to a full twelvemonth it would be a fourth more, or £75,930 13s 4d., assuming a similar general expenditure for the support of district asylums in 1876; and we apprehend there will be but little difference, the capitation cost, comparatively speaking, will be lowered in Ireland by 40 per cent under what had previously existed, so we may look forward to £14 as the annual future charge to be derived from local rates for each lunatic in a public hospital for the insane, or about £4 10s. over that of an ordinary pauper in a workhouse. Assuming further that the prospective accommodation for the inmates of asylums when completed will reach 9,000 beds, about £40,000 a year will embrace the general excess chargeable on the country at large for the support of its insane poor as special objects of care and protection in contradistinction to ordinary paupers located in workhouses, a levy of which £40,000 on the rateable property of the kingdom would give as nearly as possible the result of three-fifths of a penny in the pound as the actual extra cost of lunatic maintenance. We have already stated that the average expense per head was lower by £1 0s. 10d. in the last than preceding year, or altogether by a sum of nearly £10,000.

This satisfactory diminution is materially owing to cheaper contracts being entered into for fuel and wearing apparel, as well as to a larger farm produce, and it is the more agreeable as without any curtailment of creature comforts in regard to the inmates, there has been an increase of wages conceded to servants and attendants in some institutions.

While on this topic we cannot, however, but express the Salaries and wages opinion, that as a rule an adequate remuneration has not been given to those in immediate charge of the insane, who have such contiguous and irksome duties to perform, and whose temper and fortitude are so often put to the test by violent or ill-conditioned patients. Two unsatisfactory results are derived from insufficient payment; the first that a good class of applicants is not certain to present itself; the second, that when attendants have gained experience, they frequently seek employment elsewhere. The obligation, too, of constantly applying to the Lord Lieutenant in Council to ratify in every case an increase of wages, when recommended by local boards, be it even for a few shillings in the year, is liable to be attended with inconvenience and delays, as in each individual instance special applications, with a special resolution in due form, must be addressed by the Governors for His Excellency's sanction—a mode of procedure which may perhaps admit of modification.

In the instance however of proposed increase to the salaries of Inspection

officers directly appointed by the Executive, or whose selection by local Boards must, under statute, be subsequently ratified, it no doubt would be advisable to apply for the sanction of Government; but for small additions to the wages of servants, no necessity appears for the Privy Council being troubled on the action taken by Governors, all gentlemen of position, and delegated by the Lord Lieutenant to perform certain duties.

The amount of expenditure audited for 1874, was £190,511 15s. 2d. Owing to the great extent of business imposed on the Government Auditors in Ireland, they are unable to supply us with their returns of the year, immediately prior to the issue of our Parliamentary Report.

On the total of the twelvemonth just named, it is satisfactory to state, as shown in the Appendix, that the aggregate disallowances did not surpass the sum of £60—none being attributable to false entries, or to a collusive object. These disallowances, on explanation, were afterwards remitted, being irregularities of payment, originating for the most part in the want of a formal authority to make them, though equitable of themselves, or in technical oversight.

Under a section of the statute, Auditors have unrestricted power to pass or contravene payments, and in the latter instance to debit the amount, with the further authority to levy a distress therefor, on any Governors or Officers they may deem responsible. Thus, very delicate and important duties devolve on these gentlemen who, as may reasonably be inferred, from the limited disallowances just noticed (in previous years considerably less), and also from their subsequent remission are not inconsiderate in their views, at the same time, as a rule, they suggest to local Clerks and Store-keepers means for the more facile keeping of their accounts.

We regret, however, to state that an unpleasant discussion arose between the Resident Physician of a Southern District Asylum and one of the auditors, the former considering that the management of his institution, and the action of the Governors, had been reflected on by the latter in his fiscal report to the Inspectors. Misunderstandings, however trivial the cause of their origin, between officials, when finding admission into the press, and without any practical utility, are not calculated to benefit the public service.

Board of
cedings.

With regard to the general working of the Board of Control as established by the 18th & 19th Vic. c. 109, s. 5, and in which, as already stated, the Inspectors participate, it may not be out of place to give a summary thereof, as it affected that portion of public lunatic institutions which came more immediately under our conjoint scope in the course of the past year.

The Governors of the Armagh Asylum coinciding finally in our recommendations urged on them for a very considerable period, agreed to an increased provision for 112 patients, with a chapel, and new out-offices, the plans for which, prepared by their own architect, were approved of by us, and the sanction of the Lord Lieutenant obtained, as also for the purchase of 12 additional acres to the farm. The cost of the works and land has not been as yet ascertained, but approximately speaking, it may amount to between £12,000 and £13,000.

Board of Control Presented.

At Belfast hydrants for a full employment of water in case of fire have been adopted, with an enlargement of two day-rooms and a dormitory, on an estimated outlay of £1,600.

There are, however, requirements connected with this Institution which call for attention, notably—an increased and improved hospital provision, a chapel, and the efficient protection of land purchased some years ago, by a boundary wall at the town side.

At Cork the hospitals and adjoining airing courts, authorized by Order in Council, July, 1873, were completed at a cost of £5,776; while the raising of portion of the boundary wall and means for securing a perfect water supply, were authorized on our report, by an Order in Council, 22nd October, at an estimated expense of £1,600.

At the Carlow Asylum farm-offices were completed and structural alterations and repairs in part of the old asylum in progress, under an Order in Council, at a probable cost of £2,000, making a total expenditure on the institution at large of about £23,000 since the new buildings were commenced in 1873.

At Clonmel the formation of a connecting tunnelled passage between the two Asylums, separated by a public road, and improvements connected with the laundries and out-offices were authorized by an Order in Council, at an estimated cost of £1,995.

The question of purchasing fifty acres of land for the Down Asylum was under the consideration of the Commissioners, but no definite action in regard to it has been as yet authorized by the Executive.

At Ennis sheds for patients and farm purposes have been completed, under Order in Council, June, 1875, at a cost of £364 7s. 6d.

At Killarney fresh provision for 100 patients, with new dining-hall, under an Order in Council, was commenced, on plans prepared by our own architect, the estimated cost being £10,000.

The detached hospitals at Letterkenny have been finished, the outlay being £4,935 5s. 9d., by Order in Council, 27th November, 1864.

At Limerick additional accommodation for 100 patients, with refectories and improved day-rooms, in the old structure, as planned by the architect of the Commissioners, were commenced under an Order in Council—22nd October last—on contract for £14,500.

 and other Asylums.

The abandonment of the present Asylum at Londonderry, many years ago had been recommended by the Inspectors to the Executive, and constantly urged by them on the Local Board. At the last Summer Assizes the Governor and Grand Jurors of the district finally, and all but unanimously, acceded to the proposition, with the sanction of His Grace the Lord Lieutenant. The selection of a suitable site remains in abeyance, the citizens of Derry being anxious to have it near the town, while the great majority of the landed proprietors wish it in a more central position, and one of easier access for the benefit of the county at large. The Board of Control, in the hope that a satisfactory arrangement may be arrived at by baronial representatives, who it is proposed should meet for the object of discussing the question, awaiting their report, have come to no decision, at the same time reserving the authority to adopt an independent course.

The provision in the new Asylum being intended for at least 320 patients, the cost of erection, furniture, &c., with the purchase of land, will probably amount to £48,000, less the value of the existing structure, and the highly desirable ground for building purposes, eighteen acres belonging to it, worth perhaps a third of the sum named. The progress of the city seaward, or in its most useful direction, has been hitherto barred by the institution, so a double benefit will accrue from the projected arrangements.

Plans have been prepared for enlarging and improving the laundries and kitchens at Maryboro', by the Board's architect, at an estimated outlay of £2,000.

The late purchase of land has not been as yet enclosed, the Governors still objecting to incur the expense of erecting a suitable boundary wall along the public roads at either side, the necessity of which is obvious.

In the Mullingar Asylum two commodious dining-halls have been in process of erection, under an Order in Council of the 30th June, 1875, on an outlay of £2,000. The Inspectors regard such adjuncts essential to a well-organized institution for the insane.

At the Richmond certain unfinished portions of the boundary walls were completed, and alterations in the lavatories with a view to a continuous supply of water undertaken, at an expense, under Privy Council Order, of £800.

Increased provision for 100 beds with other necessary works was authorized by Order in Council, on the 22nd October, at the Sligo Asylum, the estimated outlay being £14,000. The plans, prepared by the architect to the Governors, were minutely examined by the Commissioners, and in part modified.

The same Order, extended to the purchase of forty-eight acres of land, valued at £4,580.

At Waterford also additional accommodation for 100 patients with some alterations in the principal buildings, according to plans drawn out and submitted by the architect of the Commissioners, was ratified by an Order in Council, 6th November, 1875, the proposed estimate of which was £14,000.

INTRODUCTORY.

From the preceding resumé of the action of the Board of General Control during the period embraced in the present Report, it will be seen that fifteen of the District Asylums of this country had come immediately under their jurisdiction, each case requiring special application to be made to the Lord Lieutenant in Council, involved much consideration, a minute examination into architectural, fiscal and sanitary details, and a frequent correspondence with local authorities, so as to justify the Commissioners in the course adopted by them.

PRIVATE ASYLUMS.

PRIVATE ASYLUMS.

There has been but little variation between the respective number of patients in private asylums during the past and the year preceding it. At the close of 1874 an aggregate of 672, between both sexes, was under treatment—296 males and 376 females. In 1875, 186 were admitted—83 males and 103 females, making a total of 858 under treatment during the year, of which 165 were discharged; one female escaped, and 39 died. There consequently remained on the 1st January 653 of both sexes.

The recoveries exceeded in the year under review those of the preceding one by five, while the mortality was less by three—both satisfactory results. It is also gratifying to us to report that no accident of a serious character occurred. On the management of these institutions generally we are enabled to report in satisfactory terms, the great majority of them being conducted with carefulness and a becoming attention to the well-being of their inmates. So much, however, depends on the cost of maintenance, and the means of families to meet it, that a perceptible difference cannot but exist in the interior organization of private asylums, some of which are replete with domestic requirements for the higher and more opulent classes of society; while others, from lesser stipends, do not present a like appearance of comfort. To make amends as far as lies in our power for the difference, and particularly, too, as not unfrequently the friends of patients consider they have fulfilled their duty to afflicted relatives by placing them under a safe control, without taking further trouble in their regard, entails no inconsiderable amount of responsibility on the Inspectors.

Our ordinary visits to private asylums are made quarterly, and at irregular periods, but under certain contingencies, and in furtherance of the provisions of the statute they are rendered much more frequent, so as thereby to secure not alone the liberty of the subject, but to guard against any irregular procedure either as to the admission or subsequent detention of the reputed inmate, who possess unrestricted privileges to communicate with us by letter. It occasionally, but rarely occurs that a justifiable cause of complaint on investigation is brought before us for inquiry. In some few we have had much ground for hesitation in adjudicating on their merits, and when in the absence of actual delusions the causes of disease were what come under the designation of moral, or were distinctly referable to habits of dissipation or of an unsubdued indulgence in drink. An Inspector in such instances can only exercise a fair discretion, and by temporary means as a warning, protect the individual from a repetition of his own culpabilities. Indeed it has happened on three or four occasions in the past year that persons themselves, feeling the impending chances of a return of insanity from drunkenness, and to escape an urgent tendency to it, have not only not objected to being placed under restraint, but voluntarily sought it; still, shortly after admission, threatened proceedings against the proprietors of private asylums for an illegal confinement. But of all the difficult cases to be dealt with, none so great as those of perverted minds, with a considerable amount of intellect, reasoning, and education, as found in the better classes, but whose acts, when free, offensive to others, and highly injurious to their own interest, are unrestrained by any sense of propriety or foresight. Discharged for a time, and comparatively much improved, they frequently relapse, and for the most part with more discouraging symptoms.

Taking the large number of private patients in the licensed establishments of this country, we believe in no instance that has come under supervision since the date of our last report has an injustice been committed through an unduly prolonged detention.

Of the existing private asylums, four being on a charitable foundation continue exempt from the charge for licence, namely, Swift's or St Patrick's Hospital, the Friends' Retreat, similar to that in York, the Richmond Retreat for Ladies, under the superintendence of a religious community of nuns, and the Luton Spa Institution. The residents in these on the 1st January, between males and females, numbered 323. The new asylum for imbecile children, to be supported by voluntary contributions, and established through most liberal donations from Dr. Stewart, is in a very forward state towards completion, and in the coming spring will be fit for occupation. It is intended to accommodate 200 inmates, with all requisite appurtenances.

The site of the buildings themselves at Palmerstown, four miles from Dublin, in the centre of about forty acres of farm and pleasure grounds, is highly salubrious.

CENTRAL ASYLUM, DUNDRUM.

In accordance with Order in Council of 26th January, 1876, which directs that the Resident Medical Superintendent of the Dundrum Criminal Asylum should transmit a report in future to the Inspectors, on the condition of that Institution during each successive year, we beg to introduce the following communication from Dr. MACCARTHY:—

"In your reports for 1873 and 1874, presented to His Grace the Lord Lieutenant, you have entered so fully upon the subject of the Central Criminal Asylum for Ireland, upon the classification and character of its inmates, the special difficulties met with in the treatment of criminal lunatics, and other questions connected with this Institution, that I may be permitted on the present occasion, to confine my report to the points mentioned in the Privy Council Rule: the condition and expenditure of the Central Asylum for the year ended the 31st December, 1875.

Resident Physician's Report to Inspectors.

"The Central Asylum at Dundrum, under existing arrangements, can accommodate 120 male and 58 female patients. Total accommodation 178.

"On the 1st January, 1875, there were 158 patients in the Institution, of whom 125 were males, and 33 females. Sixteen males and 7 females were admitted during the year, making the total number in custody, 139 males and 42 females. The discharges amounted to 2 males and 3 females; the deaths were 3 males and 1 female; leaving in the Asylum on the 31st December, 1875, 134 males and 38 females—total, 172. It will be observed that the males are 14 in excess of, and the females 20 below, the number that the building is intended to accommodate.

"The daily average number resident during the year, amounted to 165.

"The expenditure for the maintenance of this Asylum comes under two heads. First, the sum voted by Parliament, for which the Resident Physician, as accounting officer, is responsible; Second, the expenditure for maintenance and repair of buildings, furniture, and certain stores and supplies provided, and accounted for, by the Commissioners of Public Works in Ireland. The outlay for the year 1875, under the Parliamentary vote amounted to £5,613, giving an average cost per head of £34, showing a reduction of £1 14s. per head, under the Parliamentary vote as compared with last year. But it is right to add, as you have taken occasion to explain in former reports, that this average cost per head does not include the expenditure of the Commissioners of Public Works, and I may add that it is exclusive of the cost of stationary and superannuation pensions.

"The condition of the Dundrum Asylum throughout the year has been satisfactory. Many important improvements as suggested have been made in the buildings and on the grounds under the direction of the Commissioners of Public Works. The Institution has been free from any epidemic, and the patients have enjoyed excellent health. The male convicts admitted during the year have not manifested dangerous or destructive propensities, and as a result, no occasion has arisen which, in my opinion, rendered any form of restraint necessary; and I am glad to be able to add that seduction amongst the male inmates has been very seldom resorted to. On the other hand the female convicts admitted have been destructive and violent in conduct, combining on some occasions to inflict injuries on nurses in charge of them. I regret to have to report that restraint was found necessary in several instances, and hardly a week passed without the Mourning Statement Book and Medical Journal containing a record of seduction amongst the female inmates.

"The various duties entrusted to the staff of officers, attendants, and servants, have been performed with regularity and, I believe, to the satisfaction of the Inspectors, on their numerous visits to the Asylum."

As above adverted to by the Resident Medical Superintendent of the Dundrum Asylum, we have so fully, and on so many occasions

sions, discussed the subject of criminal insanity as displayed under its various phases, we deem any further comment uncalled for at present, and the more particularly as in the Appendices information is afforded of the working of the establishment in detail.

The Institution, fully occupied at the male side, would ere this have been quite inadequate to meet the ordinary calls on it, had we not sedulously restricted the admission of patients to those whose offences were of an aggravated nature, or who had exhibited homicidal, or other very dangerous tendencies. From the double fact that the average annual mortality on the one hand since its opening has scarcely exceeded three per cent, and on the other that recovered inmates are not necessarily set free, an establishment like the Dundrum fills more rapidly than a district hospital for lunatics, where not only the deaths are at least doubly more numerous, but the cured promptly discharged. Hence at no distant period—one, however, which it will be our object to defer as long as possible—the question of enlarging the Criminal Asylum of Dundrum, may be forced upon the Government.

Most respectfully submitting to your Grace the foregoing Report on the general state of Lunacy in Ireland,

We have the honour to subscribe ourselves,

Your Grace's obedient humble servants,

JOHN NUGENT.

GEORGE W. HATCHKILL.
